THE CIRCULAR NATURE OF HISTORY

BY GERRY O'MALLEY, GUARDIAN CHIEF

PRESIDENT MARY ROBINSON (NEE BOURKE) MEETS QUEEN ELIZABETH II 1993,
GRANUAILE (GRACE O'MALLEY BOURKE) MET QUEEN ELIZABETH I 1593

Last May, our President, Mary Robinson, visited Queen Elizabeth the Second in London. By coincidence, it is exactly 400 years (1593) since another Mayo woman, Granuaile, the most celebrated Irishwoman of all time, visited the first Queen Elizabeth. By further coincidence with the visit of Mary Robinson (nee Bourke), Granuaile's name was also Bourke at that time because of her marriage to Richard de Burgo.

In Celebration of these events, our Guardian Chief, Gerry O'Malley, gives an edited extract from his radio play, Granuaile.

Scene: Elizabeth's castle at Greenwich, outside London. The discussion is in the latin tongue.

Elizabeth: Sir Henry Sidney Called you "a notorious woman"

Granuaile: I have heard yourself referred to in less glowing terms.

Elizabeth: This is not something I wish to discuss.

Granuaile: But it is important to keep in mind We are on two different sides of the same ditch. it is to be expected that we hold different opinions. In addition, all you have heard about me has come from people who are my sworn enemies -

Elizabeth; My Deputies

Granuaile: When they come to this court, they dress in fine silks and clean ruffs and behave with courtly manners. I see them in a different light cruel and treacherous killing and despoiling the length of the land, scorning the honour of an ancient -

Elizabeth; I cannot listen to this. Sir Richard Bingham has called you the nursemaid of all the rebellions in Connaught for the past forty years.

Granuaile: No man you have sent has done more to injure Irish pride. He boasts of his slaughtering and his treachery. Unless you want continuing and wasteful war between your country and mine bitterness and envy without end a change of mind is necessary. Many times since I came here I have heard laughter at me and my men for our roughness of dress and speech. We are scorned and derided as savages and people of no account. In my youth I visited France and Spain and learned something of their culture, of Velasquez, El Greco and the writings of Cervantes. I saw their fine clothes, buildings and works of art. But, nearly a thousand years ago our scholars and teachers were bringing learning and civilisation to them, to all of Europe, including the Court of the great Charlemagne. Our schools of poetry and music were written and illuminated. Our artists were famed for their gold and silverwork. And what has happened since? While the rest of Europe is moving forward, we have gone in the other direction. In our struggles with your country we have retrogressed, our energies exhausted by constant war, the country a broken relic of what it might have been -

Elizabeth; Are we to be blame for this? Is not the real reason for your decline the fact that you are dominated and held in bondage by your priests?

Granuaile: Dominated by your priests! It's thirty years since they were allowed to say Mass in public. They go around the country, relying on the people for food, shelter and protection, a price on their heads the same as for a wolf or other wild beast -

Elizabeth: Your country is full of Spanish spies and such vermin. You have continually sought help of our enemies -

Granuaile: You call it help! Greedy men have offered the crown of Ireland all over Europe to promote their own fortunes: to Haakon of Norway, to Henry of France, to your own step-brother-in-law, Spanish Henry, to Robert the Bruce to Plantagenet Henry. Whenever outsiders have come, we have always lost.

Elizabeth: The fact remains, you present a threat. You leave an open door to our enemies and resist the Reformation. You are subordinate to Rome -

Granuaile: Are you forgetting that when Henry the Second came to invade us he carried with him the blessing of the Pope?

Elizabeth: It seems there is no one in Ireland we can depend on. Even our own Earl of Desmond betrayed us-

Granuaile: It's foolishness to think of the Normans as your own. They have become more Irish than the Irish. They have adopted our language, dress and customs ... even our blood, through marriage. They practise fosterage as widely as we ever did, and to the same end. When your father was proclaimed King in the Irish parliament, the Proclamation had to be read in the Irish language because no one understood English

Elizabeth: These customs of yours the poet Spenser has talked of the freedom of Irish manners -

Granuaile: Differences between our races go deeper than mere manners. Your English nobles want to be held in awe and that is how they govern. There is much bowing and scraping and tugging of the forelock. It's a way that would never do for us. With us, the highest Chief may be approached at any time by the humblest worker in the fields. He calls his Chief by his given name and looks upon the house of his Chief as his refuge -

Elizabeth: Is there, then, no disaffection between you?

Granuaile: Kinsmen are often rivals. There can be enmity inside the Clans as well as between one Clan and another. In our language, 'Clan' means 'family' and these are in the nature of family quarrels. They are often resolved without bloodshed by our Judges. -

Elizabeth: You argue well, Irishwoman! But now I greatly wish we could be done with these discussions for today. I want you to see some of our Court life. We'll have music, play-acting and dancing -

Granuaile: In Spain, long ago, I learned the Fandango!

Elizabeth: And perhaps, later, a throw of the dice. I am told you have been called, "Queen of the Gamesters"

Granuaile: At least that's something I can do as well as ever

Elizabeth: I also like to gamble. Good. It will be a good evening

(Fade to the sound of Elizabethan music, crumhorn, sackbut, rebeck, lute and virginals)

41ST O'MALLEY CLAN RALLY

26 AND 27 JUNE 1993

BY SHEILA O'MALLEY-MULLOY

Chieftain Sheila O'Malley-Mulloy and her grandchildren

The forty-first O'Malley Clan Rally took place on 26 and 27 June, 1993. Chieftain Sheila O'Malley-Mulloy and the O'Malley Clan Committee have every reason to be pleased with the results of their efforts to make this an enjoyable and memorable occasion for all who attended.

The first event on Saturday 26 June was the opening of an exhibition in the Linenhall Art Centre Castlebar of part of the O'Malley Collection of Irish and international art. This important collection had been made by the late Ernie O'Malley and his wife Helen O'Malley Roelofs, and is now housed in the Museum of Modern Art at the Royal Hospital Kilmainham. Ernie O'Malley, author and freedom-fighter, was a native of Castlebar. His American wife Helen, poet and sculptor, wished to have part at least of this collection housed in Castlebar. This hope has not as yet been realised, so that this exhibition was a rare opportunity for the people of Mayo to see some art treasures of a calibre that is rarely seen outside Dublin.

This exhibition would not have been possible without generous assistance from the Arts Council, the Shaw Trust, the Granuaile Trust and Allied Irish Banks. But perhaps even more important was the great interest and co-operation shown by Ruth Ferguson of the Museum of Modern Art at Kilmainham, John Coll, Arts, Advisory Officer to Mayo County Council and Marie Farrell, director of the Linenhall Centre. And not to be forgotten is the prime mover behind the event, Ernie's son Cormac who is currently Tánaiste of the Clan.

Saturday evening began with the Annual General Meeting of the O'Malley Clan Association at 8 pm in the Grand Central Hotel, Westport, presided over by Gerry O'Malley Guardian Chieftain. There was an attendance of about sixty people to listen to the account of the 1992 Rally read by Kitty O'Malley-Harlow, and the Financial Report, which showed the finances to be in a healthy state largely because of the profit from the 1991 Rally and this year's generous grant from Bord Fáilte. The Chairperson of the O'Malley Clan Committee, Sheila O'Malley-Mulloy, thanked all who had helped her to prepare for the Rally, especially the Committee members and those who had been instrumental in bringing about the exhibition in Castlebar of part of the O'Malley Art Collection. She also said that after ten years in office she now wished to resign as Chairperson.

Cormac O'Malley was acclaimed as the incoming Tánaiste, and general satisfaction was expressed at the election of such a distinguished clansman. Cormac is a member of the Granuaile Trust of the O'Malley Clan, and has been closely involved in Clan affairs for many years. The incoming Chieftain Ellen O'Malley Dunlop announced that next year's Rally would take place in Clare Island on 25 and 26 June. This announcement was greeted with great applause, as Clare Island holds a very special place in the hearts of all O'Malleys.

The meeting was followed by a reception hosted by Chieftain Shiela O'Malley -Mulloy. Music was provided by gifted traditional musicians Laoise Kelly, harpist; Elizabeth Keane, fiddle and Marina Murray, piano accordion. The delicious mussels and smoked salmon were sponsored by Blackshell Farm and Killary Farm respectively, while cheese was provided by Carrowholly Cheese. These excellent local products could not be bettered in any part of Ireland and are a superb example of local initiative.

Sunday morning began with Mass at 11.30 in St. Patrick's Church, Lecanvey. This was celebrated by Fr Pat O'Malley son of former chieftain Anthony O'Malley of Louisburgh. Concelebrating with him were Fr Des O'Malley, O.F.M., Westport and Fr Tom O'Malley, C.S.Sp., Cleggan. The Mass servers were Karol and Catherine O'Malley, children of Michael and Mary Jane O'Malley, Newport. Classical and traditional music was beautifully played by Patrick Earley and Edy Hennig, while Mary Connolly sang with feeling and great artistry. Father Pat spoke from the heart of the great human hunger for peace in our day throughout the world.

The congregation then gathered at Murrisk Abbey where Shiela O'Malley -Mulloy spoke of the history of the friary and the nearby Croagh Patrick pilgrimage. It was, she said, a fitting place for the clan to gather, as it was here that Saint Patrick ministered to our forefathers in the fifth century.

The annual clan luncheon was the last and most important event of the Rally. This was in Hotel Westport and was attended by some 150 people. All were cheered by the pipe music of Eoin O'Malley, Swinford, who played throughout the day, and added greatly to the enjoyment of the occasion. Guardian Chieftain Gerry welcomed all present, especially Toni and Bruce Penfold who had come all the way from Australia. Other overseas guests were there from the U.S., Canada and the United Kingdom. The beautiful lunch was followed by a speech from the Chieftain thanking all who helped with the Rally in any way - the sponsors, the musicians, the clergy and the committee. She said that the greatest benefit accruing to her from her association with the clan was the friendship of all those she had met over the years. She felt very strongly that this was indeed "a tribe of brotherly affection and of friendship".

The new Chieftain Ellen O'Malley-Dunlop was installed by the outgoing Chieftain, and replied to the warm welcome extended to her by the gathering. Ellen is well-known to the clan membership and we look forward with anticipation to her year of office. Guardian Chieftain Gerry wound up the proceedings in his usual eloquent and thought-provoking style.

A raffle with valuable prizes sponsored by Renvyle House Hotel, Hotel Westport, and former Chieftains Michael of Castlebar and Peter of Newport, followed by music from the Tony Chambers Orchestra concluded the festivities for 1993.

PADDY JOE O'MALLEY SUPER SENIOR ATHLETE

(A MAN FROM TIR NA NOG)

BY ELLEN O'MALLEY-DUNLOP

Paddy-Joe and Beatrice O'Malley

Paddy Joe O'Malley was born in Westport in 1918. He is the son of John and Margaret O'Malley. He emigrated to the U.S.A. in 1947. He married and had four children. While in Chicago recently I heard about Paddy Joe from Ellen Hodges and Mary Anne Casey. Both women were very reverent in their references to this man. Alice O'Malley, to whom I spoke on the phone, referred to "and of course there's Paddy Joe whom you must meet". I felt a sense of disappointment that I had not been able to meet, who I now know to be, a living legend, and a marvellous example to us all, of what can be achieved in a short lifetime. In Paddy Joe's own words "It doesn't matter how ridiculous the goal seems - if you want it enough, you'll get it. The only limit on you is the one you put on yourself. Never forget that."

Before leaving Ireland Paddy Joe O'Malley began his sporting career, which spanned several decades, playing soccer. No doubt if he were playing now he would be in Jack's Army, with a hope of going to the US to play for his country. He then took up boxing and became a boxing champion and held the title for 12 years. While he was boxing he took up bicycle racing which soon became his new sport. He competed in hundreds of races but he remembers one race in particular: "It was in 1941, a 25 mile race in Ireland in which I raced against the world champion cyclist, George Robinson. He was a friend of mine and we trained together often. Ninety nine percent of the time he beat me. But in this race I beat him by a half wheel. It was an accomplishment."

After obtaining hundreds of medals and trophies from his years of boxing and bicycle racing in Ireland, O'Malley decided to marry and to move to America in search of greater opportunities. He lived in the States for nearly 20 years with his wife and four children without touching a bike. "I finally started to race again after my kids bought me a racing bike", O'Malley said.

In 1980 he began running marathons and trained with his son Jerry at his side. Three years later his running career came to a surprising and painful halt upon the traumatic death of his 31 year old son who was killed in an auto accident. "I didn't train for a year", O'Malley said. "I finally got back into it because I thought it was what Jerry would want."

Once O'Malley got back on his feet, he competed more and more in biathlons and was in his first triathlon in 1985. "I got into triathlons to see what my body could take and to be honest with you I feel just as good as I did 30 years ago".

Imagine running several miles against a brisk Chicago wind and after finally reaching your destination, jumping into the frigid waters of Lake Michigan. Then jumping on a ten-speed bike. This is the type of thing Paddy Joe O'Malley was up to at 70 and plus years of age.

In 1979 he was honoured as Irishman of the Year. He is one of the founder members of the O'Malley Clan in Chicago. In 1988 he was selected on the All American Senior Athletics Team(Triathlon) because of his placings during that year. He has won the World's indoor Triathlon in his age group and received a Silver in the Chicago Marathon.

Each year he has competed in the Senior Championships and this year 1993, aged 75 years young, he won Illinois State Championship in the full event:

- 1st Mile Walk (Gold)
- 1st 10k bike (Gold)
- 1st 10k Run (Gold)
- 2nd 1 Mile Bike (Silver)
- 2nd 5 Mile Bike (Silver)
- 2nd Long Jump (Silver)
- 1st 50 yard Swim Breast Stroke (Gold)

In the Park Ridge Regional Championships he won 3 Golds and 4 Silvers.

Paddy Joe O'Malley shows no signs of slowing down. He's accomplished all he's ever wanted but he doesn't let that close him up to new opportunities.

MICHAEL AND CHRISTINA O'MALLEY

BY SHEILA O'MALLEY-MULLOY

Michael George O'Malley M.Ch., F.R.C.S., K.St.G., (1887 - 1961) was the sixth son and thirteenth child of Peter O'Malley, Kilmilkin, Maam, Co Galway, and Mary O'Malley, Ballyburke, Westport, Co Mayo. He was educated at Rockwell College and Queen's College, Galway. He continued his medical studies in Dublin, and was one of the first seventeen medical graduates from UCD in 1910, being one of two to receive first class honours. After a period in the Mater Hospital, Dublin, he worked in London, returning to Galway in 1914, where he became an assistant in the Anatomy Department, UCG, and subsequently Professor of Surgery from 1924 until his retirement in 1956. Consulting Surgeon to the old Galway Infirmary, he later held the position of Consulting Surgeon at Galway Central Hospital which was to become the Galway regional Hospital. Appointed a Knight of St Gregory by Pope Pius XII in 1956, he was conferred with the Honorary Degree of M.Ch. by the National University in 1959. A co-founder of St Bride's Nursing Home, Galway, he was a former President of the Golfing Union of Ireland and of the Contract Bridge Association of Ireland, as well as being surgeon to the Galway Race committee for over thirty years. A keen supporter of local industry, he was a director of many concerns including Galway Foundry, Galway Gas Co., Galway Tile Co., Hygeia Ltd., Colchon Ltd., the Galway Bridge Mills and Renvyle House Hotel.

Christina Mary O'Malley (1890 - 1976) of Tomcoole, Taghmon, Co Wexford, was the seventh daughter and ninth child of John Ryan and Elizabeth Sutton. Educated at Loreto College, Gorey, and the Royal University, she graduated in French and German. She subsequently studied in France and Germany, before taking up teaching posts in Edinburgh and London. Returning to Ireland, she joined the staff of the Mary Immaculate Training College in Limerick. She had met Michael O'Malley in London, and was to marry him in 1916, at the time he was practising as a surgeon in Galway. The mother of eight children, Peter, Eoin, Sheila, Eithne, Evelyn, Maura, Brian and Michael (dec), she was besides actively engaged in the Bridge and Golf Clubs, and the St Joseph's Nursing society. She was above all a very talented gardener, and her tree and a half acres of garden at Barna House, which included seven glasshouse, were widely-known in the area for their range of flowers, vegetables and fruit.

KEEPING UP TO DATE

GRACE O'MALLEY FEATURE FILM

The film project on Grace O'Malley is progressing. The Anne Chambers and David Reilly first draft script, 'The Pirate Queen' is presently being read in Los Angeles and London by international film producers. Anne and David have successfully retained the services of CFI (Corporate Finance and Investments Ireland Ltd), through its Executive Director, Anthony Kirwan, to raise part of the production budget in Ireland through the Section 35 Investment scheme and to liaise with producers and other international finance companies interested in becoming involved in the production. Initial reaction to the script and to the project has been very favourable.

As the Granuaile Trust has not yet reached target figure for the film project, all donations will be graciously received. Those of you who wish to donate monies to the Trust in the United States, will be eligible for tax exemption. All donation may be sent to the Granuaile Trust, 33 Springfield Road, Terenure, Dublin 6W, Ireland. All cheques please make payable to the Granuaile Trust of the O'Malley Clan. Your support is much needed and much appreciated.

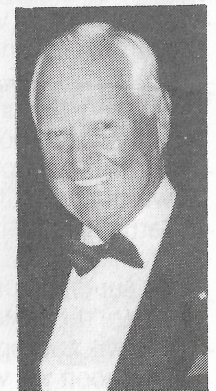

Thanks to all those who have made donations to date, to the Trust. As the donations are received we thank everyone individually; but as soon as the target has been reached we hope to issue a public thank you, by way of naming all those who have been able to support the Trust at this time. We hope this will be possible in the next issue of the Newsletter. We are deeply indebted to The American Ireland Fund who have accepted the Granuaile Trust as a recipient of Donor Advised Status in America.

NEW YORK O'MALLEYS

Shaun O'Malley and Cormac K.H. O'Malley, hosted a Dinner at the Brook Club in New York, which was attended by our Chieftain Ellen O'Malley-Dunlop. Many O'Malleys came to the Dinner to meet the Chieftain and to be introduced to the O'Malley Clan Association and the Granuaile Trust. Hopefully this dinner will be the beginning of a new network of New York O'Malleys and we look forward to continued and fruitful meetings with them on both sides of the Atlantic.

ANNOUNCING THE 1994 O'MALLEY CLAN RALLY, JUNE 25 AND 26

The 1994 Rally will be held on Clare Island, in Clew Bay, on the last weekend of June. This is only the second time the Rally will have been to the island, which was one of the strongholds of Grace O'Malley in the 16th century. Eithne O'Malley Gaffney held her very successful Rally on Clare Island in 1976. I hope Eithne will have a word in the ear of the Gods regarding the weather for our forthcoming Rally, as she managed to have the most wonderful weather in 1976.

The programme will begin with a

- Golf Classic at Westport Championship Golf Course, for all the golfing enthusiasts, and I believe there maybe a hint of a Tennis Tournament!!
- For parents with young children, Claire of Westport House, will give your children 'the time of their lives' on Saturday morning, playing pitch and putt, visiting the Zoo, climbing, games etc., etc.
- In the afternoon Peter Gill of Clare Island, will give guided tours of the Island, which are not to be missed.
- Saturday evening the Chieftain's reception with lots of entertainment, music, drama etc.....
- On Sunday morning we will walk to the 11th century St Brigid's Abbey, where the O'Malley Mass will be celebrated, and sung by An Uaithne.
- We will eat together and exchange our shared and varied stories, and in the afternoon we will be treated to a mini Regatta and lots more besides.

The notices for the Rally will arrive early in February, for those of you living abroad, and a little later for those nearer Ireland.

We look forward to a most enjoyable Rally and invite you to come and help make it an unforgettable time. Clare Island has a magic all of its own, with delightful hospitable people, who know how to have a good time.

THE O'MALLEY CLAN ASSOCIATION

A new committee has take over with Peter McGee at the helm, this year. We wish you Peter, and your committee, every good wish for the future. I'm glad it's not goodbye to Shiela O'Malley-Mulloy, who has retired as Chairperson of the Clan Association, as she is staying on as a committee member. Thank you very much for all the hard work, time, energy and sheer 'stick at itness' you've given the Clan, over the years. You give us inspiration, and we're glad you'll be around for many more years because we have a lot to learn from you.

Sometimes we are inclined to forget the spouses of us O'Malleys, and I would like to thank Johnny Mulloy, without whose support, Sheila would not have been able to do all she has done.
